

DIG SITE

Pretend that you are an archaeologist from the year 9013 AD who has just made an amazing discovery in the southwestern part of the area that was once called Oregon. There was a giant worldwide war back on Thursday, September 11, 2014 and all written and computerized historical writings were destroyed. The people of the 91st century know very little of the race of primitives who inhabited the earth all those years ago. You are the first person to uncover evidence of the existence of humanoid life forms on the North American continent. As you dig further down into what you believe to be a dwelling for these obviously barbaric beings, you begin to uncover a number of strange and intriguing objects.

Your assignment is to describe the purpose and uses for several of our commonplace objects from the point of view of a person who has never before seen anything quite like these following fascinating relics:

Oldest person at table - blender, camera, toilet seat

Youngest person at table - lamp, microwave, Xbox with controllers

You need the following information for each object:

1. Detailed physical description of the object. Size, weight, color, material, and design.
2. What you think the object was used for (you must be wrong!).
3. Explain how they used the object and why you think they used the object as you described. (I think they used it to _____ because...)
4. Draw a picture of someone using each object as you described.
5. Each written description and explanation needs to be at least half a page.

DIG SITE

Pretend that you are an archaeologist from the year 9013 AD who has just made an amazing discovery in the southwestern part of the area that was once called Oregon. There was a giant worldwide war back on Thursday, September 11, 2014 and all written and computerized historical writings were destroyed. The people of the 91st century know very little of the race of primitives who inhabited the earth all those years ago. You are the first person to uncover evidence of the existence of humanoid life forms on the North American continent. As you dig further down into what you believe to be a dwelling for these obviously barbaric beings, you begin to uncover a number of strange and intriguing objects.

Your assignment is to describe the purpose and uses for several of our commonplace objects from the point of view of a person who has never before seen anything quite like these following fascinating relics:

Oldest person at table - blender, camera, toilet seat

Youngest person at table - lamp, microwave, Xbox with controllers

You need the following information for each object:

1. Detailed physical description of the object. Size, weight, color, material, and design.
2. What you think the object was used for (you must be wrong!).
3. Explain how they used the object and why you think they used the object as you described. (I think they used it to _____ because...)
4. Draw a picture of someone using each object as you described.
5. Each written description and explanation needs to be at least half a page.